Introduction

During a historic sites survey of the area known as the Lower Gregory Neighborhood completed for the West Orange Historic Preservation Commission in 2016, the State Diner at 567 South Valley Road (Block 28, Lot 23) was identified as an excellent example of post-World War II diner architecture (Figure 1). The West Orange Historic Preservation Commission retained the services of Hunter Research, Inc. in 2019 to conduct an in-depth study of the State Diner and its history with the goal of designating it as a Local Historic Landmark per the Township of West Orange Revised General Ordinances 25-30.3, “Historic District and Landmark Designation”. This Landmark Designation Report presents the results of this study and was prepared to support the West Orange Historic Preservation Commission’s decision on whether to recommend that the Master Plan and Zoning Map of the Township of West Orange be amended to designate the State Diner as a Local Historic Landmark. This is the first step in the local landmark designation process outlined by Township of West Orange Revised General Ordinances 25-30.3.

Physical Description

Exterior

The State Diner is a prefabricated dining car in the streamlined Art Moderne style (Photograph 1). It was designed and built by the Kullman Dining Car Company, Inc. circa 1947. Modest in size and scale, this one-story, seven-bay building measures approximately 50 feet long by 20 feet wide. It has a flat roof finished with unoriginal rolled asphalt that supports ducts and ventilation equipment. The exterior walls are clad with original pressed stainless steel panels. The stainless steel cladding consists of upper and lower bands of horizontally ribbed panels with shiny steel bands alternating with flat red steel stripes (Photograph 2). This emphasis on the horizontal, which is a characteristic of the Art Moderne style, is further accentuated by a ribbon of large plate glass windows divided by stainless steel frames dominating the front elevation of the diner. The windows provide ample light to the interior, as well as offer a direct view into the diner to attract passing customers. Transoms at the top of the windows provide ventilation. The stainless steel and plate-glass façade wraps around the side elevations of the diner, while the rear elevation is clad with plain stainless steel panels that have been painted (Photographs 3-6). Plate glass windows are also located on the south (side) elevation, while the north (side) elevation features stainless steel panels pressed into a pattern of vertical bands. Two unoriginal metal backlit signs reading “State Diner” obscure the upper bands of stainless steel cladding on the north and south (side) elevations.

The front corners of the diner are curved, which is characteristic of the Art Moderne style and post-World War II diners, and have curvilinear plate glass windows set above and surmounted by stainless steel panels featuring vertical ribs. Together, the horizontal ribs, the vertical ribs, the curved corners and the rectangular plate glass windows create the eye-catching geometric patterns characteristic of the Art Moderne style and post-World War II diners. The main entry is centered on the front elevation and contains a stainless steel door with a full glaze that also enables passersby to glimpse the interior of the building (Photograph 7). Flat stainless steel bands frame the entry and extend from the foundation to the roof. The entry sits above the street and access is via brick steps with concrete treads and an unoriginal wrought-iron railing. The diner sits above a full-height basement on a stuccoed concrete-block foundation. The foundation contains two replacement vinyl awning windows on the front elevation.

A one-story wing containing a service entrance extends from the rear elevation of the diner. It appears to have been constructed in two phases. The first phase consists of a two-bay, stuccoed, concrete-block section topped by a shallow shed roof clad with asphalt shingles that contains the staircase to the basement. This section appears to be contemporaneous with the circa 1947 construction of the diner since it provides access to the full basement on which the prefabricated diner rests. A small three-light fixed wood window set in the southernmost upper corner of the concrete-block section of the rear wing lights the staircase to the basement. The second phase rear addition is a service entry clad with plywood and surmounted by a steeply-pitched shed roof finished with asphalt shingles with a deep overhang. A replacement paneled vinyl door is located in the northern corner of the second phase addition. The age of this addition is unknown but the materials are relatively modern and not consistent with the original circa 1947 materials. A small exterior, stuccoed, concrete-block chimney sits at the corner of the rear elevation of the diner and the south (side) elevation of the rear wing.

Interior

The interior of the State Diner consists of a large open dining room oriented to the long axis of the building (Photographs 8-9). The majority of the interior finishes are original and are consistent with the modern, streamlined architecture of the exterior. Although the diner features a flat roof, the ceiling on the interior curves downwards at the front of the building towards the plate glass windows to mimic the appearance of the railroad car or wagon-style roof that characterized pre-World War II diners. It is clad with cream- and red-colored Formica panels accented by stainless steel trim bands. A band of fluorescent lights spans the length of the room at the middle of the ceiling.

The defining feature of the interior is a Formica countertop that spans the length of the dining room from the plate glass windows on the south side of the building to the interior wall that separates the two single-person restrooms and the kitchen located at the north side of the building from the dining room and the back bar (Photographs 10-11). Original stainless steel stools set on tapered octagonal bases line the front of the counter, and four four-person Formica tables are arranged along the front wall. It is unclear if these tables are original, but they match the Formica countertop. A single, off-center pass through is aligned with the front entrance and grants access to the back bar. Stainless steel dominates the back bar. A stainless steel grill hood curves to meet the rear wall above a stainless steel griddle, fryer, stove and other back bar appliances adjacent to a stainless steel refrigerator (Photograph 12). The front of the grill hood features a red Formica panel, and it appears that the original menu boards have either been removed or covered over. The stainless steel splash guard has been pressed into a sunburst pattern.

The dining room floor features patterned white rectangular ceramic tiles accented with red squares. The walls and counter apron are finished with an alternating pattern of gray rectangular and square ceramic tiles. The upper part of the north wall consists of two stainless steel panels and two mirrored panels.

The full-height basement is accessed via a concrete staircase located in the rear wing. It consists of one large open room with a poured concrete floor and concrete-block walls. Steel I-beams span the ceiling and support the diner above. The basement currently serves as storage space and houses the electrical panel, ducts and plumbing.

The original steel builder's tag is centered at the top of the stainless steel refrigerator, which stands at the west corner of the diner behind the back bar (Photograph 13). It features a matte finish with slightly raised lettering featuring a shiny finish. The letters read "Built by Kullman Dining Car Co., Inc. Harrison, New Jersey."

Garage

A circa 1930 one-story, twelve-bay, shed-roof, concrete-block garage is located at the rear of the property behind the State Diner (Photograph 14). It has an L-shaped plan and is arranged along the south and west (side and rear) property lines of the lot. The front elevation is finished with replacement vinyl siding, and the side elevations are stuccoed. The concrete-block construction is visible on the rear elevation, which is unfinished. It has twelve entries containing replacement overhead paneled vinyl garage doors.

Statement of Significance

Designed and manufactured by the Kullman Dining Car Company, Inc., circa 1947, the State Diner is a significant and well-preserved example of a post-World War II, streamlined, Art Moderne style diner of a smaller size that was sometimes referred to as "dinette." Originally established circa 1928, the State Diner was owned and operated by members of the Lombritto family, all of whom were either Italian immigrants or second-generation Italian-Americans. Like many diner operators, the Lombritto family upgraded its business circa 1947 and replaced the original diner with a newer model. While the exuberant geometric patterning of its Art Moderne-style exterior enabled it to attract customers from the road, its use of modern materials, including stainless steel and Formica, bespoke cleanliness and efficient service. During the mid-20th century, New Jersey became the center of the diner industry, with hundreds of prefabricated diners arrayed along its roads and approximately a dozen diner manufacturers offering a variety of models to prospective diner operators. The State Diner is historically significant as an intact example of the small, independent, family-owned prefabricated diners that made New Jersey the "Diner Capital of America."

The Architectural Evolution of Diners. A quintessentially American building type, the mid-20th-century diner traced its beginnings to lunch wagons that began to appear in American cities in the late 19th century. The first lunch wagon reportedly opened in Providence, Rhode Island, in 1872, when Walter Scott began to sell homemade food out of a converted freight wagon to factory workers. By 1884, lunch wagons had evolved to offer indoor restaurant service with stools at counters. Initially mobile units that operators moved on site each day, lunch wagons began to open at permanent sites in the latter decades of the 19th century. As lunch wagons became increasingly popular and began to appear in growing numbers in Northeastern cities, the first companies arose that manufactured mass-produced lunch wagons.

These companies, most notably the Patrick J. Tierney Company in New Rochelle, New York, the Worcester Lunch Car Company in Massachusetts and the Jerry O'Mahony Company in Elizabeth, New Jersey, transformed the lunch wagons of the late 19th century into the diners of the 20th century by introducing elaborate eye-catching materials and decorative features that became part of customizable packages available for purchase. For ease of transportation, these diners were long and narrow and resembled railroad cars, with an unbroken strip of windows and a monitor or railroad-car style roof. Colorful exteriors comprised of baked enamel and painted metal panels predominated in the 1920s, while the interiors typically featured marble counters, wood and brass trim and elaborately tiled floors and walls. By the 1920s, the lunch wagon was increasingly referred to as a diner due to its resemblance to railroad dining cars, and the diner had largely taken on its classic form.¹

During the 1930s and 1940s, the emergence of new materials, most notably Formica and stainless steel, dramatically altered the appearance of the American diner. Patterned stainless steel exteriors increasingly replaced the baked enamel and painted metal exteriors of the early 20th century, while Formica and stainless steel appeared in place of marble counters, wood trim and elaborate tilework. When present, tilework was subdued.² Aesthetically, diner manufacturers favored streamlined Art Moderne designs that descended from high-style architecture, such as Art Deco and the early International style. The streamlined Art Moderne design “evoked static movement through the use of shaping and modern materials such as highly polished stainless steel,” which reflected the Machine Age and the concurrent growth in the popularity of industrial design across all aspects of American society.³ By the late 1940s, the Art Moderne style predominated and diner exteriors featured: substantial masonry foundations; stainless steel panels with varied patterns and, sometimes, colored fleck glass, colored plastic or metal trim lines; curvilinear glass corners; and flat roofs. Likewise, diner interiors featured: tile or terrazzo floors; stainless steel back bar panels and appliances; Formica countertops; Formica wall and ceiling panels; stainless steel stool posts with naugahyde seats; and tile walls. Nearly all of these character-defining features are present in West Orange's State Diner.⁴

Originally designed to serve industrial workers, diners became working-class institutions during the first decades of the 20th century. They required relatively little capital to open and operate and, unsurprisingly, appealed to individuals who wanted to own their own business and were willing to work hard. Immigrants and second-generation Americans dominated the diner industry, comprising the majority of diner manufacturers, operators and customers. German, Irish, Italian and Jewish families founded and operated many of the diner manufacturing firms that flourished during the middle decades of the 20th century, while these ethnic groups were also well represented among diner operators.⁵ In New Jersey, Greek immigrants represented a sizeable minority of diner operators.⁶ Reflecting the ethnic fragmentation of American working-class culture, diner operators often sought to attract and ensure customer loyalty by offering an array of dishes from different European countries. The drastic social changes wrought by World War II, most notably the wide-scale entry of women into the American work force, increased economic prosperity and the growing popularity of the automobile, opened diners up to a more diverse clientele during the postwar period.⁷

The diner reached peak popularity during the middle decades of the 20th century, and diners effectively became the "machine" that fed the American public, promising "fresh, homemade food and friendly service at an affordable price".⁸ In 1951, the United States housed approximately 6,000 diners, the majority of which stood on the East Coast. Reflecting and responding to the automobile-oriented culture of the mid-20th century, diners were typically located along major roadways. Diner architecture embraced the innovation and technology of the period and attracted customers with gleaming stainless steel and "sleek lines and aerodynamic forms."⁹ With its population density and expansive network of highways and roads, New Jersey became the center of American diner culture in the mid-20th century, with approximately twelve manufacturing firms producing hundreds of diners between the 1930s and 1950s and hundreds of diners arrayed along its roads.¹⁰ The popularity of diners began to wane in the late 1950s and the 1960s due to the success of "fast-food" chain restaurants, and diner manufacturers began to experiment with new designs that moved away from modernism and stainless steel towards substantial buildings with masonry exteriors in a variety of historical revival styles.¹¹

State Diner Property History. The Kullman Dining Car Company prefabricated the State Diner circa 1947. It replaced an earlier diner established by the Lombritto family at this location circa 1928. According to Essex County deeds, Guiseppe (Joseph) Lombritto purchased two vacant lots at 569 (later renumbered 567) South Valley Road measuring approximately 30 feet by 125 feet on the west side of South Valley Road south of Hazel Avenue from Henry S. Williams, executor for the estate of Harriet J. Williams, for $625.00 and $700.00, respectively, in 1916 and 1917.¹² Born circa 1872 in Italy, Lombritto immigrated to the United States in 1899.¹³ By 1916, he lived in Orange, New Jersey, where he worked as a laborer.¹⁴ It appears that Lombritto, who later anglicized his given name of Guiseppe to Joseph, purchased the land as an investment opportunity, for he operated a confectionary business out of his home in Orange during the 1920s while the property at 567 remained undeveloped until circa 1928.¹⁵

The Lombritto family constructed a diner known as the State Diner at 569 South Valley Road circa 1928. The Atlas of East Orange, Orange and West Orange published by the Franklin Survey Company in 1932 indicates that the first diner may have been slightly smaller than the present diner (Figure 2).¹⁶ A copy of the Sanborn Map Company's Insurance Maps of West Orange, published by the Sanborn Map Company in 1912 and updated to 1933, on file at the Essex County Register of Deeds, depicts the first diner as a wood-frame structure clad with metal. A one-story, L-shaped, concrete-block garage containing space for 11 cars stood at the rear of the property behind the State Diner (Figure 3).¹⁷ The Lombritto family may have rented garage spaces to neighboring residents and businesses.

Although Guiseppe Lombritto maintained ownership of the land, available public documents show that Damiano LiVecchi, also known as Dominic LiVecchio, managed the diner for the Lombritto family between 1930 and 1934. Born in Petralia Sottana, Italy, on March 9, 1893, Damiano LiVecchi immigrated to the United States in 1922 and became a naturalized citizen in 1930. He listed his occupation as a "lunch wagon" in December 1929 when he applied for citizenship, while the city directory for the West Orange published by the Price & Lee Co. in 1930 identified LiVecchi as the manager of the State Diner.¹⁸ LiVecchi and his wife, Lillian resided with Guiseppe Lombritto and his family at their home at 404 Valley Road in Orange in 1930, suggesting a strong personal relationship.¹⁹

The Lombritto family assumed a more active role in operating the State Diner during the 1930s. Prior to 1934, Frank and Phillip Lombritto, Guiseppe Lombritto's sons, along with LiVecchi, incorporated the State Diner, Inc. LiVecchi and Frank Lombritto served as the firm's president and vice president, respectively, while Phillip Lombritto was the secretary-treasurer.²⁰ Despite their respective titles, Phillip apparently oversaw the daily operations of the State Diner during this period with the assistance of LiVecchi. According to the 1940 federal population census schedule for Orange, Phillip was the self-employed owner-operator of a lunch car, presumably the State Diner.²¹ Born in Italy, the 39-year-old Phillip was the oldest child of Guiseppe and Josephine Lombritto. In the same 1940 census the 47-year-old LiVecchi described his work as that of a blacksmith at a lunch wagon, presumably the State Diner, and resided at 106 Rollinson Street in West Orange with his wife.²² In 1942, LiVecchi listed Frank Lombritto as his employer, which may indicate that Frank had taken over the operation of the State Diner from his brother.²³ Regardless, their father Guiseppe Lombritto retained ownership of 569 South Valley Road throughout the 1930s to mid-1940s.

The State Diner experienced dramatic changes during the 1940s. After Guiseppe Lombritto died at the age of 68 on October 15, 1944, his children, Frank Lombritto, Phillip Lombritto, Lillian Nittoli and Jennie Lombritto, established a trust in 1945 to manage the property that they inherited, which included the State Diner and the house at 404 Valley Street, and appointed Frank as trustee.²⁴ As trustee, Frank became responsible for managing the properties, collecting rents and making all necessary repairs. A review of property tax records and historic aerial photographs indicates that he decided to upgrade the State Diner sometime during the ensuing two years, replacing the original circa 1928 building with a new diner manufactured by the Kullman Dining Car Company. This fit a common pattern in which operators traded in their small and outdated diners for newer models.²⁵ Frank's decision to upgrade the State Diner circa 1947 coincided with the death of his older brother Phillip, who passed away at the age of 47 on January 25, 1946. With Phillip's death, Frank became the secretary-treasurer of State Diner, Inc., which likely made him responsible for day-to-day operations, and Jennie Lombritto became vice president. LiVecchi continued to serve as president of State Diner, Inc.²⁶

The Lombritto family trust retained ownership of the State Diner for approximately 24 years. The trust transferred title to the State Diner and 404 Valley Street to Frank and Elizabeth Lombritto for $29,000 on October 27, 1969.²⁷ They, in turn, sold the State Diner to Warren W. and Grace Armstrong for $16,000 that same day.²⁸ After Grace Armstrong died on November 10, 1983, Warren W. Armstrong owned the State Diner for an additional year. Nicola and Annette Iannaccio purchased the property for $105,750 on November 19, 1984.²⁹ Although Alfred L. and Belinda A. Matos purchased the State Diner from the Iannaccios for $250,000 in 1999, the couple owned the property for only one year.³⁰ They transferred title to Nicola and Annette Iannaccio in lieu of foreclosure on September 28, 2000.³¹ They, in turn, sold the State Diner to Robert Pascual for $200,000 on April 12, 2001.³² Pascual owned and operated the State Diner as the Valley Diner until 2015, when he sold the property to Housing and Neighborhood Development Services, Inc. (HANDS, Inc.), the current owner.³³

Kullman Dining Car Company. Samuel Kullman founded the Kullman Dining Car Company in 1927. Originally from Ukraine, Kullman arrived in the United States with his family in the early 1900s. After receiving an accounting degree from New York University, Kullman worked as an accountant and vice-president of finance for the Patrick J. Tierney Company, which manufactured diners in New Rochelle, New York. Kullman left the Patrick J. Tierney Company in 1927 and established the Kullman Dining Car Company on Frelinghuysen Avenue in Newark, New Jersey. Prior to 1938, the company moved to larger facilities in Harrison, New Jersey, where it remained headquartered until the 1960s.³⁴ The company subsequently moved to Avenel, New Jersey, and Lebanon, New Jersey. The Kullman Dining Car Company was one of approximately one dozen diner manufacturers in New Jersey, including Silk City Diners in Paterson, Mountain View Diners in Little Falls and Jerry O'Mahony in Elizabeth. During the 1940s, which represented the "golden age" of the diner, the Kullman Dining Car Company manufactured 40 to 50 diners per year.

While the size of diners generally trended upwards during the 20th century, the Kullman Dining Car Company offered diners that ranged in size from "dinettes," small diners designed for shipment by truck or rail as a single unit, to large multi-sectional diners. Dinettes first appeared in the late 1930s in response to demand from diner customers and owners for small units that recalled the lunch wagons of the late 19th century and to compete with White Castle and White Tower hamburger restaurants, though the Great Depression also heightened their economic appeal. Designed as one-person operations, dinettes were well-suited to the short order trade that revolved around limited menus with lighter dishes and lunch and dinner specialties. Dinettes experienced a second surge in popularity after World War II, when the Kullman Dining Car Company introduced the Kullman Junior. These one-piece diners could be ready for business within one day of their arrival on site and came furnished with the same equipment as multi-section Kullman diners. According to the Kullman Dining Car Company, the Kullman Junior provided owners with “all the tested features of a super diner . . . boiled down to every-day needs.”³⁵ The Kullman Junior and other post-World War II dinettes appealed to veterans returning from World War II and entrepreneurial people who wanted to open a diner but lacked the financial capital to invest in a large, multi-sectional diner.³⁶ Given its small size, the State Diner represents one of the Kullman Dining Car Company’s post-World War II dinettes.

The Kullman Dining Car Company exclusively manufactured diners until 1969, when it began to expand into new areas of prefabricated, modular construction. During the ensuing decades, its list of projects included a community college in Massachusetts, jails in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, telecommunications shelters and a United States embassy in Africa. By 1993, the Kullman Dining Car Company was known as Kullman Industries and diners comprised only approximately 20 percent of its business. Robert Kullman, Samuel Kullman’s grandson who became chief executive officer and president of Kullman Industries in 1989, sold the business in 2006. In 2011, the company, which was now known as Kullman Building Corporation, closed and sold its production equipment.³⁷

Comparative Examples. The State Diner is one of two extant diners in West Orange, the other being the Americana Diner (former Tory Corner Diner) on Main Street. A circa 1950 Mano Dining Car Company model, the Americana Diner is significantly larger than the State Diner and is distinguished by the zigzag cornice comprised of stainless steel panels and the parapet comprised of stainless steel panels impressed with a diamond pattern that wrap around the front (east) and side (south) elevations.

The State Diner is one of several Kullman Dining Car Company diners extant in the State of New Jersey. One of these, Angelo’s Diner, a 1951 Kullman Dining Car Company model located in Glassboro, New Jersey, remains standing. The exterior of Angelo’s Diner is exactly the same as that of the State Diner, though its interior layout is different. The Elgin Diner in Camden, New Jersey, was manufactured by the Kullman Dining Car Company in 1958. While the building, which was demolished in 2014, featured a flat roof, rounded corners, large plate glass windows and horizontally ribbed stainless steel panels with shiny steel bands alternating with flat red porcelain stripes, its dramatically flared corners and vestibule noticeably distinguish it from the State Diner and exemplify the flamboyant modern designs of the late 1950s.³⁸

Six diners in New Jersey have been deemed eligible for the New Jersey and National Register of Historic Places. Tom's Diner, a 1930 Silk City model in Roxbury, New Jersey, is representative of the Art Deco and Early Moderne diners that preceded the Art Moderne diners of the 1940s with its monitor roof and stainless steel and painted metal panel exterior. It was determined eligible for the National Register of Historic Places in 1995. The White Manna Diner, located in Jersey City, New Jersey, is a 1939 round model manufactured by Paramount Diners for the 1939 World's Fair. The Clarksville Diner, a 1940 Silk City model with a monitor roof and painted metal panel exterior, originally stood in West Windsor Township. It was determined to be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places in 1985 and was subsequently moved to Iowa. The Melrose Diner, a 1940 model manufactured by the Jerry O'Mahony Company, originally stood in Philadelphia before it was moved to New Jersey in 1956. It was determined to be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places in 1987 and was subsequently moved to the Smithsonian National Museum of American History.³⁹ With its large plate glass windows, flat roof, rounded corners and horizontally pressed stainless steel panel exterior, the Giordano Diner, a circa 1950 Mountain View Company model, shares many of the same Art Moderne-style elements as the State Diner. Originally located in Lawrence, New Jersey, and subsequently moved to Hamilton, New Jersey, the Giordano Diner was determined to be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places in 2001. The White Circle Diner, a 1957 Manno Dining Car Company model in Bloomfield, New Jersey, features the same flat roof and rounded corners but differs noticeably from the State Diner due to its full-height plate glass windows. It was determined to be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places in 1995.

Justification of Eligibility

The definitions and procedures for local designation of historic landmarks and districts in the Township of West Orange are contained in Chapter 25-30 of the township's ordinances. Specifically, the National Register Criteria for designation are incorporated by reference in subsection 25-30.3(b).⁴⁰

The National Register Criteria for eligibility are described by the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Register Program in 36 CFR 60.4:

"The quality of significance in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling and association, and:

A. that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or

B. that are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or

C. that embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or

D. that have yielded, or may be likely to yield information important in prehistory or history.

The State Diner is judged to be eligible for listing as a local landmark under Criterion A for its association with the pattern of events that transformed New Jersey into the “Diner Capital of America” during the 20th century. Owned and operated by Italian immigrants and a second-generation Italian American between 1928 and 1969, the State Diner is representative of how diner ownership, with its low capital investment, enabled immigrants and working-class Americans to become successful independent business owners and to achieve the American dream.

Designed and constructed by the Kullman Dining Car Company circa 1947, the State Diner embodies the character-defining features of the post-World War II, streamline Art Moderne diner property type. It is rectangular in shape with a flat roof and a substantial masonry foundation and features a streamlined exterior comprised of patterned stainless steel panels inlaid with painted metal trim and rounded corners with curvilinear glass windows. The interior is defined by the counter that runs the length of the diner and separates the area for food preparation from the public space for customers. Characteristic of post-World War II Art Moderne diners, the State Diner interior finishes include a Formica countertop, Formica tables, fixed stainless steel stools, Formica wall and ceiling panels, stainless steel backbar panels impressed with a sunburst pattern, stainless steel appliances, stainless steel trim and a tile floor. As such, the State Diner is also eligible for listing as a local landmark under Criterion C.

Apart from the signs below the roof on the side (north and south) elevations, the State Diner has remained largely unaltered since its construction circa 1947 (see Photographs 15 and 16). In short, the State Diner retains all aspects of historical integrity, including design, exterior and interior materials and workmanship. It is judged to have a period of significance from its construction circa 1947 to 1969, when the Lombritto family sold it to new owners.

The circa 1930 garage that shares the lot with the State Diner is considered a non-contributing building. It pre-dates the period of significance of the diner and has no direct associations with the diner's purpose or function as an eating establishment. The garage has diminished integrity of materials and workmanship due to the replacement of garage doors and modern vinyl siding, and no architecturally distinguishing features, Joseph Cassara, Deputy Clerk.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

I hereby declare, on oath, that I absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly to Victor Emanuel 3 King of Italy, of whom (which) I have heretofore been a subject (or citizen); that I will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States of America against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; and that I take this obligation freely without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion: So HELP ME GOD. In acknowledgment whereof I have hereunto affixed my signature.

Dominic LiVecchi
(Signature of petitioner)
 Sworn to in open court, this 12th day of May, A. D. 19 30.

By W. B. Reier, Deputy Clerk.
 NOTE.—In renunciation of title of nobility, add the following to the oath of allegiance before it is signed: "I further renounce the title of (give title or titles) an order of nobility, which I have heretofore held."
